

Adrian Kenneth Pitcher was born in Unley, a southern suburb close to the city of Adelaide, on 7 August 1945. He completed his secondary education at Unley High School before attending the University of Adelaide where he graduated as a Bachelor Civil Engineering in 1966. He was then employed as a Graduate Civil Engineer.

Adrian commenced his National service as 4718865 on 2 February 1967 at 2 RTB, Puckapunyal, where he was selected for Officer Training at OTU, commencing on 17 February with Class 1/67. Adrian graduated from OTU and was allocated to the Royal Australian Engineers and on 14 July commenced his Young Officers Course at the School of Military Engineering, Casula. On completion of the course, on 19 October he was posted to the school. Adrian completed his two years on 1 February 1969 and discharged from the Army. 'LinkedIn' show that Adrian was involved as a Human Resources Business Partner at Rheinmetall Defence Australia.

Adrian's wife, Judy, advised that he had died in 2012. There was an obituary for him in the Sydney Morning Herald, but the association has not been able to locate it online.
