

David returned to secondary teaching after completing National Service and was a dedicated, highly respected teacher and member of our community, but he often expressed the thought that he had not already been committed, he may well have chosen to remain in the services, which says much for the benefits he felt he had received.